SUPRO has taken massive consultation programs on SDG and 7th Five Year Plan at local and national level in the current year. Within these activities, the prominent one was meeting with parliamentary caucus on budget. Consultation meetings have been conducted in 45 districts, meeting with journalists, and meeting with UN summit on SDG along with SUPROs recommendations and provided the message from SUPROs point of view.

SUPRO has taken several programs on pro-poor Tax Management formulation and budget decentralization in the current year 2015. Among from these activities performed the national income tax day and participation in the tax fair at the national and district level along with government and discussion meeting with the Chairman of National Board of Revenue along with different high level officials of VAT and Tax department before and after the income tax day at the national and district level. That’s why SUPROs Tax related activities have been more familiar to all I guess. It will pave the way and expose the next step of SUPRO, I believe.

We have pleasant news because “formulate pro-poor policy and ensuring public services for all” and “establish justifiable tax management policy”. SUPRO has been able to focus on these two strategies to the policy makers, network members and representatives from civil societies with due significance. I hope, we will be able to create a larger space on mutual cooperation in the future.

SUPRO has organized its National Convention this year where SUPRO has expressed her new institutional thinking at local and national level. It will create a huge room for SUPRO in their forthcoming activities and campaign programs. Because the grassroots voices, their unity and their cooperation is the main of source of SUPROs strength.

I am confessing myself wholeheartedly for having support of Oxfam Novib as a part of SUPROs financial and strategic partner. Activities and Achievements in 2015

1. Reducing Poverty, Inequality and Vulnerability

Reducing poverty, inequality and vulnerability is one of the broader priorities areas of SUPRO’s strategic plan. SUPRO observed that despite the praiseworthy progress of the last one decade in poverty reduction, increasing inequality between rich and poor remains a critical issue, which is also a question of denial of the rights of millions of people. Reducing inequality is a critical issue in poverty reduction discourse, because if inequality can persist unchecked, in the long run it breeds poverty and powerlessness of the poor and reduces the nation’s capacity to achieve economic growth. Inequality, often a systemic feature of any oppressive socio-economy, also breeds exclusion and discrimination, causing deep rooted conditions such as youth unemployment and suppression of rights and voice, which often leads to pervasive social frustration and from there, to conflict. All these socio-economic factors discussed along with the absence of a fair taxation system, improper budgetary allocation inadequately addressing the poor peoples’ needs and rights, poor democracy and lack of good governance accelerate poverty situation in the country.

The network considers this area as the centre of its all activities, as a result of which all its advocacy and campaign in 2015 were directed to the promotion of finding solutions to poverty, inequality and vulnerability issues of Bangladesh.

Grassroots Voices on MDGs and 7th Five Year Plan

In the transitional phases from MDG to SDG and entering into 7th FYP, being a part citizen responsibility SUPRO carried out countrywide awareness raising, discussion and consultation meetings including press conference and lobby meeting with the members of the parliaments at the national on Sustainable Development Goals and reflections on current 7th Five Year Plan. All the events were implemented in between August to October 2015 and have been successful to bring attention to the duty bearers and to raise grassroots voices on these issues.

Transforming our world, Sustainable Development Goals 2030 have been approved by the Heads of States in September 2015 in UN HQ with huge fanfare. New Agendas have been covered wide range of issues and its possible outcome which was not included in the old ones. One of the key striking things needs to be seen that for the first time in UN history the new agendas have been shaped up through a massive consultative process.

In connection with the spirit of SDGs, Bangladesh government has developed and approved her 7th Five Year Plan (2016-2020) in October 20, 2015. As the goals, targets and indicators of the SDGs are well taken care of in the formulation process of the 7th Five Year Plan of Bangladesh, it can be said that the country will be an ‘early starter’ in the implementation process of the SDGs.

ANNUAL REPORT 2015  08 > 09
Grassroots recommendations shared through press conference just before UN summit on SDGs

After ending the consultations meetings in 43 districts, SUPRO organized a press conference with the media at the national level to disseminate the outcome of the grassroots stakeholders at National Press Club on 22 September 2015 just before the UN global summit on SDGs signing.

The speakers at the meet indicated the growing inequality between the rich and the poor and among countries that emerged as huge challenges that must be properly addressed in new framework that will be adopted at the United Nations Summit. Based on district consultations meetings recommendations.

Civil society urged the MPs to play active role for accountable, transparent and effective implementation of SDGs and 7th Five Year Plan

Civil society urged the MPs to play active role for accountable, transparent and effective implementation of SDGs and 7th Five Year Plan in the meeting.

Dr. Md. Rustum Ali Faraji, MP chaired the meeting while General Secretary of the Caucus Nazmul Haque Prodhan, MP and General Secretary of SUPRO Md. Arifur Rahman welcomed all. SUPRO Director Alison Subrata Baroi presented the key note paper titled “Implementation and Challenges: Sustainable Development Goals-2030 and Bangladesh 7th Five Year Plan”. Member of Parliamentary Caucus and Parliamentary Standing Committee, national council members of SUPRO, university teachers, and representatives from development partners, NGOs and media took part in the meeting. Former Chairperson of SUPRO Abdul Awal moderated the session.

The key note paper highlighted that the heads of 193 countries has approved the global development framework- the Sustainable Development Goals 2030 on 25th September 2015 in UN HQ, New York, which is a result of inclusive and collective effort from all the states and non states actors that consolidated wide range of needs and aspiration from human rights perspectives. In connection with the spirit of SDGs, Bangladesh government has developed and approved its 7th Five Year Plan (2016-2020) in October 20, 2015. As the goals and targets of the SDGs are well taken care of in the formulation of the 7th Five Year Plan, it can be said that the country will be an ‘early starter’ in the implementation process of the SDGs. However, there are some challenges for effective, accountable and transparent implementation that include how the country will develop its own indicators; what would be the monitoring and accountable mechanism; how the fund will be mobilized to carry out the activities; how the plan will be reflected in annual plan and budget, to what extent the participation from all stakeholders will be ensured; to what extent the developed countries’ commitment will be ensured and so on. Finally SUPRO placed 10 recommendations to the government and members of parliament. Key of the recommendations is below:

- The UN can enter into a cooperative agreement with each SDGs implementing member state that will outline the country-specific time-bound targets and monitoring and reporting mechanisms, and will indicate the financial contribution both from the respective country’s national budget and through official development assistance (ODA).
- The UN can also devise a similar agreement with each ‘donor’ country and organization where they will make specific and time-bound pledges to provide financial resources and technical assistance for achieving the SDGs targets.
- Each SDGs implementing country will incorporate its SDG targets into its time-bound national development plans (annual, 5-year, 10-year etc) and also synchronize with their overall development strategies and policies.
- Government will immediately form a “National Coordination Committee” comprised of elected representatives, CSOs, Researchers, Professionals, Citizens, Journalists, government officials and relevant stakeholders with a view to monitoring performance and dissemination of the progress publicly.
- Increase role of parliament members in the parliament session and standing committee meetings to expedite the implementation and monitoring process of SDGs and 7th FYP including directives and inspiration to the respective ministries/division/department/institution for effective implementation of the set goals and targets.

All the meeting members expressed solidarity with the recommendations.

Press Conference on the SDGs & 7th Five Year Plan Implementation and Challenges

After UN Summit on Sustainable Development and approval of SDGs SUPRO organized another press briefing which was held at Dhaka Reporters Unity on 17 November 2015 where certain recommendations are placed before the media as follows:

- The UN can enter into a cooperative agreement with each SDGs implementing member state that will outline the country-specific time-bound targets and monitoring and reporting mechanisms, and will indicate the financial contribution both from the respective country’s national budget and through official development assistance (ODA).
- The UN can also devise a similar agreement with each ‘donor’ country and organization where they will make specific and time-bound pledges to provide financial resources and technical assistance for achieving the SDGs targets.
- Each SDGs implementing country will incorporate its SDG targets into its time-bound national development plans (annual, 5-year, 10-year etc) and also synchronize with their overall development strategies and policies.
- Public-Private Partnership (PPP) will have to further strengthened, and the private sector will have to commit much larger financial resources for the SDGs. They need to acknowledge that a poverty free world will only help the private sector to flourish.
- The civil society, NGOs and CBOs must be involved from the very beginning in all stages of implementation of SDGs. The national government of the day must create enough meaningful space for the civil society to make its due contribution in achieving the Global Goals.
- A greater and more meaningful gender balance and participation will have to be ensured in all stages of implementation of the SDGs.

Speakers at the press briefing urged to build a national committee, consist of CSOs, NGOs representatives, related GoB institutes and stakeholders for following up and monitoring of SDGs targets. The conference was chaired by Ahmed Swapan Mahmud, Chairperson of SUPRO while Director Alison Subrata Baroi presented the key note paper. Vice chair Hosne Ara Hasi, executive board member KGM Faruque, national council members Matiur Rahman and Manju Rani Pramanik were present as the speakers from the grassroots.
2. POOR AND MARGINALISED FRIENDLY BUDGET ACCOUNTABILITY AND INSTITUTIONAL GOVERNANCE

Lack of institutional governance and budget accountability promote inequality and discrimination that directly affect poor, marginalized and particularly women and children in many aspects of their livelihood that includes access to essential services, access to justices, access to resources and power and above all the enjoyment of human rights. Realizing the needs, SUPRO has been playing an active role since 2003 to ensure that a pro-poor budget is formulated with participation from the grassroots people. As a part of its budget campaign, SUPRO organises a series of discussions at the district and national level to collect demands from the community and share with the policymakers in order to promote budget accountability and institutional governance.

With the support of Oxfam Novib, SUPRO has carried out numbers of activities under the project ‘Our Money Our Budget Universal Access to Public Services’ and ‘Pro Poor Policy Reform and Public Services for All’ during this year that contributed to promote budget accountability and governance.

Parliamentarians are one of the key stakeholders in budget advocacy. In fact they are the key role players in budgetary process. SUPRO organizes budget campaign since 2003 targeting the policy makers including MPs. To ensure pro-poor budget, SUPRO organizes various events with MPs including consultation, roundtable meeting, lobby meeting etc.

In this connection, SUPRO organized a lobby meeting with Parliamentary Caucus on National Planning and Budget on 24th January 2015 at the oath Room, National Parliament Building on the eve of preparing the 7th five-year plan and the upcoming budget for the fiscal year (FY) 2015-16. Co-chairman of Parliamentary Caucus Mir Shawkat Ali Badsha, MP chaired the meeting along with other representatives of caucus including MP Fazle Hossain Badsha, Rajshahi-2, Ushatan Talukder, Rangamati, Lutfa Taher, reserve seat-40, Quazi Rosy, reserve seat-41, Nur-e-Hasna Lily Chowdhury, reserve seat-44 as guests and General Economics Division (GED) member Shamsul Alam, Former chairman of National Board of Revenue Dr. Muhammad Abdul Mazid, Prof. of Dhaka University Dr. M Abu Eusuf & Kanor Maloy, Program Manager, Oxfam as discussant. Representatives of NGOs, CSOs, development partners, media and SUPRO national council members were also present there.

SUPRO general secretary Md. Arifur Rahman moderated the meeting while General Secretary of CAUCUS Nazmul Haq Prodhan, MP delivered the welcome address and SUPRO director Alison Subrata Baroi presented the position paper.

All the speakers noticed that dependency on bureaucrats in preparation of budget responsible for its not being pro-people as it does not reflect the demand of the grassroots massages. They identified weaknesses in the political process for becoming over-dependent on the pressure. They also expressed concern over increasing income inequality in Bangladesh which is more than that of the neighboring countries. They identified lack of initiatives for increasing direct tax collection and creating excessive pressure on value added tax (VAT) for the trend. Besides, only five percent people of the country possess 50 per cent of the wealth but many of whom are spared from direct tax which should be the main basis of budget.

SUPRO’s demand & recommendation to the budgetary CACUS:

- Take the opportunity to discuss the above grassroots demands in current parliamentary session
- Expecting to see the effective participation of CACUS member in the upcoming five year plan & national budget formulation
- CACUS should be more functional and active in addressing grassroots demands and aspiration in national planning and budget during the parliamentary session.
- Initiate regular dialogue/sharing meeting with grassroots civil society organizations, learn their hope and aspirations, and share with the concerned departments/ ministries/ institutions.
- Diligent initiative would be taken to involve grassroots civil societies in the consultation process for the preparation of the 7th five year plan & budget formulation 2015-16.

Grassroots communities urged to include their concerns in the national budget 2015-16

Prior to the formulation of the national budget 2015-16, SUPRO organized pre-budget discussions in 45 districts. Local government representatives, government officials, NGO representatives, CSO representatives and representatives from marginalized groups attended the discussions and put forward their demands. Later on, the district committee sent these demands and concerns to the finance ministry in the form of a memorandum.

Digital tutorial- a new dimension added on budget literacy and budget accountability campaign

The two digital tutorials (Budget Process & Budget Tracking) are made that break down the budget into simple terms without the trappings of complicated jargons. In the digital tutorials it is used crisp animation and easy to understand graphics to explain the budget to the campaigner as well as to the stakeholder. The first one explains how the budget is made. It explains the entire budget making process from the beginning to the end primarily for campaigners. The second video tutorial explains how to track specific budget allocations for the local school or hospital. These were targeted for the campaigners as well as local stakeholders.

With the technical support of Red Orange, both tool kits were developed in consultative processes- from the script development to final products. SUPRO grassroots campaigners and policy leaders were engaged in the entire processes. The tool kits are available in the SUPRO website and facebook.

District campaigners of 45 districts equipped with knowledge and skills on using digital budget tool at grassroots

To aware and to orient the grassroots campaigners especially district secretaries SUPRO organized one-day-long orientation on using the digital tutorial in the budget advocacy on 18 and 19 October 2015 at STAR Centre of SUPRO Office at Moahammadpur, Dhaka. Fifty six campaigners, of which 46 male and 10 female from 43 districts joined the orientation. The campaigners received clear idea and knowledge about the digital tools including its effective use at grassroots budget advocacy.

The trained campaigners then organized half-day-long orientations among the members of the district campaign committee at the respective districts. Thus 40 half-day orientations were held in 40 districts and oriented 632 grassroots campaigners coming local NGOs/CSOs, of which 437 is male and 195 is female. The events will help the local campaigner’s to mobilize community more efficiently by using this hands on digital tool kits.
Successfully piloted digital budget tutorial for grassroots campaign at Kurigram and Barguna

SURPO organized 36 video sessions on budget tutorials among grassroots community from 3 to 12 November 2015 in 18 Unions of Sardar Upazila, Kurigram and Betagi Upazila, Barguna. At least 2 video sessions were conducted in each Union where one was for women and another is for youth and men audiences. A total number of 3,239 participants including 1,558 male and 1,681 female were attended the sessions. The most of the video sessions were held at the Union Parishad building of the selected union involving respective Union Parishad Chairman and Ward Councillor. Before start the session, there was an introduction and at the end of session grassroots community took part into an open discussion – what they learn, is there anything they need clarity, what be the role of the community etc. Many of them experienced it as new because they are not aware about the budget process and of the budgetary allocation especially on Education, Health, Agriculture and Social safety Net sector.

It is to be mentioned here that SUPRO selected Kurigram and Barguna district based on specific criteria that included geographical location, regional priority, poverty and climate risk prone. The result of piloting is highly satisfactory hence SUPRO is thinking of scaling up the interventions in other districts with wider coverage.

Develop and update web based information system linking with social media for sharing knowledge and information

With the technical assistance from Red Orange, one website www.amartaka.org has been developed which is a repository of all the data collected throughout the project but they are presented in a manner that makes the budget easy to understand. Notably, the website has an interactive map of Bangladesh on which a user would be able to find out specific allocations at the local level merely by clicking on the highlighted areas. Initially this is only for two selected upazilas – Kurigram Sadar and Betagi. But it may be filled with data with similar exercise across Bangladesh in later phases. All other materials like videos, interviews, case studies and stories are featured on the website with links to corresponding Facebook pages of those upazilas. The Facebook pages can become platforms for further awareness raising and source of feedback that will eventually be featured on the website.

A list of website features was first developed detailing what each page will have, what tabs will be displayed on the home page and how a visitor could navigate through the site. The functions of different features within the website were then finalised including the interactive map, tax calculator and other graphical illustration of the budget. Then the graphic design team developed a general layout for all generic pages of the site. This was followed by content generation and editing. The website soft launch was followed by tweaks and bug fixing. The website is still going through slight modifications from time to time. The pages have yet to be updated since the main tracking exercise has to take place.

5. UPHOLD PEACE, SECURITY AND DEMOCRACY

Peace and security is the pre-requisite of development. In Bangladesh, the raising trend of political violence has promoted the most threatening factors for going down human rights situation and undermining human rights principles. The reasons behind this are the lack of consensus among the political parties, politico-historical legacy of confrontation, and divergent policy choices of both government and opposition. Non-political violence and violation of human rights are also prevalent in the country but political backings to those have appeared to be reported by the news papers in many cases. Considering the context, civil society representatives, organizations and networks need to work together to raise their collective voice to protect human rights, governance and democracy; protest boarder killings; amendment of laws for stopping death penalties; change political parties’ motivations and cultures; stop misuse of power; and claim independence of the law and order protection machineries of the state.

More than 1500 representatives from different organisations including government, NGO, CSOs, media houses and educational institutions joined these events and expressed their demands and views on different human rights concerns.
6. FOOD SOVEREIGNTY, CLIMATE JUSTICE AND DISASTER IMPACTS

Food sovereignty in its essence is defined as the right of the people and sovereign states to democratically determine their own agriculture and food policy. Like many poor countries, Bangladesh has already surrendered its food sovereignty to global markets when it adopted agricultural market liberalisation policies dictated by the international financial institutions since mid-nineties of the last century.

These entire phenomena have the potential of triggering discrimination, rights violation, marginalisation, internal migration, health hazards, food scarcity and insecurity, livelihood and environmental disorders, and reducing energy sector efficiency. At this juncture, it is crucially important to recognise that the agenda of food sovereignty and climate justice should be placed at the centre of all programmes. Civil society role is pivotal to monitor utilisation of funds and rehabilitation and adaptation programmes. Evidence-based advocacy on the compensation and adaptation issues for the affected people at national and international level is also essential.

Violence against women is a regular phenomenon in Bangladesh. A new study has found that Bangladeshi men who have preconceived negative attitude towards women are more likely to use violence against women. Other major findings of the study are: more than 40 per cent of men who use sexual violence, first forced women into sex when they were children i.e. when they were below 19 years old; men's experience of abuse and violence during childhood increased the likelihood of perpetrating intimate partner violence; about 57-67 per cent of men sexually abused women just for fun; and about 43-51 per cent of the perpetrators did not have any concern or reaction after perpetrating sexual violence against women.

Bangladesh although does not fully comply with the minimum standards for the elimination of trafficking, it however is making significant efforts to do so. The government has much fallen short of increasing its efforts to catch and prosecute labour trafficking offenders, particularly those responsible for the fraudulent recruitment of Bangladeshi workers for the purpose of forced labour overseas.

SUPRO organized a press conference to STOP Trafficking, Killing, Physical Torture & Humiliation of Endangered Migrant People and Compensate the Victims on 29th May, 2015 at the Extended Auditorium of Dhaka Reporters Unity. As it’s the emerging right based concern about the marginal people & this people are the wage earner for us so SUPRO decided to stand its organizational position on this issue.

Half of the world population is women and it is not possible to reach towards inclusive development without all-round participation of women, and today’s young girls are future women and with this view the theme of this year’s International Women’s Day has been chosen as ‘Empowerment of Women is Empowerment of Humanity’. SUPRO being a rights based organization showed full solidarity with the theme and organized a Human chain and Rally to observe the International Women’s Day on March 8, 2015 across the country at national and local level (at 45 districts). Total 27000 persons (Male : 20520, Female : 6480) in 45 districts actively participated to express their solidarity with above mention issues.
